THE MINISTER OF WATER RESOURCES (DR. C.P. THAKUR): (a) to (d) A new Centrally Sponsored Scheme on "On-Farm Water Management for increasing Crop Production in Eastern India" has been formulated by the Ministry of Agriculture for operation during the remaining priod of 9th Five Year Plan. The scheme has not yet been approved. The productivity of foodgrain crops particularly rice, a major crop of the Eastern parts of India is generally low compared to other parts of the country. There is a scope for increasing area and production of foodgrains particularly rice during rabi and summer seasons, if additional irrigation infrastructure is provided. A majority of farmers in the Eastern region are small and marginal who are not in a position to develop on-farm irrigation resources and providing assistance to them for the development of On-Farm Water Resources will help in their betterment. The salient features of the scheme include assistance for construction of shallow tube wells, community lift irrigation points, supply of electric/diesel pumping sets, demonstration of water management technoloogy and production of breeder/foundation/ certified seeds. Funds have not been earmarked for the State of Assam, as the scheme has not been approved. Assam does not come under the purview of the Ganga Action Plan.
